ADDICTION

PROUD

ENCOURAGING HOPE. STRENGTHENING FAMILIES.

PROUD serves women who are pregnant or parenting young children and who have active substance use concerns, or a substance use history, including opioid use, or a related disorder. Recovery coaching, prenatal health and parenting education, and additional support and linkages to community and social services are offered. Substance use, physical and mental health assessments, and education and referrals also are provided to participants, their children and other family members, including spouses, who often have substance use disorders.

HOW IT WORKS:

Wheeler's program helps pregnant and postpartum women to access and retain substance use disorder treatment and recovery services; decrease substance use during prenatal and postpartum periods; and increase parenting skills and attachment. Support and services are available to partners and spouses who may be struggling with substance use disorders, as well as to children and youth in the family. The program offers:

- Culturally sensitive, gender- and trauma-informed approaches to care, including a substance use treatment and/or relapse prevention group and individual services
- Peer recovery support
- Family strengthening through Circle of Security,[®] an in-home parenting intervention designed to promote strong parent-infant attachment
- Wraparound supports for pregnant and postpartum women and their families

All program participants will have access to myStrength, a highly interactive, individually tailored application used to engage and retain individuals in treatment and sustained recovery.

SERVICE DELIVERY

Services are delivered in homes; through telemedicine visits; or in-person at Wheeler's community health centers in Bristol, New Britain, Plainville and Waterbury. Connections to primary care, obstetricians, pediatricians, and higher levels of substance use treatment, including intensive outpatient, detox, and medication-assisted treatment (MAT) will be offered, as well as linkages to a range of community supports, including early childhood resources and services, to meet individual clients' needs.
